

It's Not Easy Going GREEN

by Megan Grant, Nick Friedlander, 2020 PharmD Candidate, Amanda Margolis PharmD, MS, BCACP

Welcome to the March/April issue of the Journal of the Pharmacy Society of Wisconsin. We are celebrating our second anniversary of our GREEN issue. In honor of Earth Day (April 22, 2020), we do not physically print The Journal in an effort to save paper. Instead, the entire issue is made available online and open access. Typically JPSW is partially open access. We make the original research, CEs, preceptor series, and spotlights always available. However, review articles and other features are considered a member benefit and not freely shared at this time. For the March/April we make an exception and share all of the content!

While the March/April issue of JPSW will continue to be the green issue every year some individuals prefer to go all green all year! You can opt out of the mailed version of The Journal in your PSW account. Go to pswi.org and login to your online account. In your user account under "Account Actions" on the right hand side of the screen, choose the "privacy and Journal Subscription" link. On the next page, un-click the option to "include me in the physical mailing of The Journal". This will take you off the mailing list. All members of PSW can access the PDF and digital version of The Journal on the Journal archive page on the PSW website or at JPSW's website: www.jp svi.org

It's not always easy to go green. Single-use water bottles and plastic bags from grocery stores are convenient! But switching to reusable water bottles and bags are among the easiest ways to begin to go green. Other common recommendations include turning lights and appliances off when not using them, using water thoughtfully, eating less meat, sourcing local vegetables, and supporting environmentally responsible brands. Our journey to go green was not easy at JPSW either. It required the infrastructure and a new website to support easier online access. But we want to support you in your endeavors to be more environmentally conscious and hope you enjoy this issue of JPSW!
